Object name: Dell-3300 Print Server

Vintage: c.2004

Synopsis: Somewhat limited WiFi-enabled print server, S/N: CN-0X6473-72383-4CB-G982.

Description:

The Dell-3300 Print Server was a WiFi-enabled print server for Dell's USB printers, although it seems that it only worked with a few of Dell's printers, e.g. their 1700 and 1700n Laser printers, and their 962 All-In-One printer. The concept was admirable, but either the implementation or the marketing constraints seem to have been flawed.

Setup was via a USB 1.0 interface to a PC or laptop, at which time the server's WiFi configuration would be configured. Afterwards the USB 1.0 interface was redundant, and all communication with the server was via WiFi.

Detailed instructions for installation and used are available at [1].
